STUDY SKILLS

Studying is one of the elusive elements with which many students struggle. Many students realize they need to study because it naturally fits that if one is taking classes, then one must study, right?

Remember these tips for making the most out of your study time:

- Make a study schedule that works with your own personal schedule - include work and family time when you are finding time to study
- Communicate with those in your home that your study time is important
- Choose a place to study that is quiet, has good light, and is convenient to place all books, pens, paper, etc.

English Sessions

- Mondays, 6:30 - 8:00 p.m. - English Conversation Circle

Make sure to have this in mind and know that organizing your time is the key to managing your schedule

COMMUNICATE OFTEN

Whether you are taking online classes or attending in person, communicate missing deadlines and/or missing classes. Do your best to collaborate with your peers and teachers.

FIND SUPPORT

Every student needs support: family, friends, coaches and teachers are all ways to access support. Try to find one person that is truly an advocate for your learning.

FOCUS ON THE FINISH

Remember why you started to come to school. When you and the class and work get harder, ask yourself "why am I doing this?" Keep items that help with your motivation - quotes, pictures, etc.
